

It is my firm belief that satellite radio is very necessary to our economy. The very essence of its existence is freedom. The same freedom to move about our country. Taking satellite radio with us where ever we may go. It's absurd to try to limit it's content. It's like saying where and when we can travel through our great country. We all know what that's called, "communism!" A system of government in which its people are controlled. I don't want to be held hostage by this form of leadership.

Sincerely,

Alan Gould
